AUTOMATING THE LEGAL CONTENT

Dr. Nakul Parashar

Just imagine if you are given a huge repository of more than two million judgments, and subsequently asked to write summaries to each of these cases, what would you do? Wouldn't you start reading them one-by-one, and then start abstracting each of them. Legal case judgments from various courts, are voluminous data to read and analyze. A painstaking and time-consuming job. Isn't it. To accomplish this task, a huge force of law-graduates and post-graduates would then be recruited and deployed to read and sift through these cases. The so-called summaries of these cases have a unique format and are popularly known as headnotes. Like abstracts in research papers, a headnote is an abstract-like brief summary to assist the readers in locating various important points of a legal issue in an opinion. From the word headnote, it appears that it is at the beginning of the published and reported case judgment. Thus, a headnote accompanies a case judgment like an abstract at the beginning of a research paper.

Well, the challenge still remains. Getting to write headnotes manually out of a huge repository becomes tougher as the number of published case judgments keep mounting daily. To read and produce a headnote manually, it is found that an average of five headnotes per day per person can be produced depending upon the length of the reported case judgment. The size of cases from the lower courts is smaller, and those from the higher courts are larger. In a nutshell, achieving to write headnotes manually would then be an uphill task, a herculean one! To complete a repository of two million cases in a year, one can easily compute the huge number of trained human resources to be deployed.

Can this process be automated?

The answer is yes. A number of legal domain experts and data scientists came together in the last decade to form up teams and develop an expert system. This expert system could read the case judgment and identify areas that pertain to certain fields of a headnote. Once the relevant fields are extracted and duly populated as per the headnote format, another set of programs completes the final structuring of the headnote. The effort to the creation of this expert system is still underway since the nature of source content is highly disparate in nature, which means that no two cases are completely identical. Additionally, the content of every judgment is highly subjective in nature. This makes the possibility of automating the process through pattern recognition beyond any scope and hope. Thus, the workflow acquires the machine learning route, where all texts are duly converted from any kind to pure text format with the highest character accuracy. This means that the data conversion to text format has to be perfect to the highest level of character accuracy. Once the converted text is ready, then with the help of AI tools this text is auto-converted into XML format. This XML format with the highest possible level of granularity is the basis of

PREPARING FOR CIVIL SERVICES INTERVIEW

S B Singh

Preparation for any job interview should begin with a proper understanding of what an interview is all about. This is more relevant for the Civil Services interview which carries elements of fear, excitement, and mystery. The answer to the question as to what is an interview is that it is a test to determine suitability of a candidate for a particular job. Since every job entails different work profile, skill sets, responsibilities, interview serves as a device to test whether (or not) a candidate possesses those qualities in order to perform in the position he is going to be selected for. Most of the interviews seek to test domain expertise of a candidate, and thus are conducted within a defined boundary, for example corporate job interviews, armed forces interview, or interviews for the posts of doctors, nurses, engineers, scientists etc.

However, the CSE interview is altogether different. Here, no domain expertise is being tested because UPSC offers a variety of jobs under one format of examination, that includes interview also. By appearing in the same UPSC interview, candidates get selected for a range of services like IAS, IPS, IFS, IRS, postal services, defence account services and so on.

The UPSC has outlined the purpose of CSE interview: " to assess the personal suitability of the candidate for a career in public service". In other words, the interview board will seek to assess how suitable a candidate is to be placed in the civil services of the country.

Interview, the final frontier: Civil Services Examination has three stages. The process of selection is spread over a year. It begins with preliminary examination followed by main examination and then, finally, the interview which is known as personality test. One who is able to cross this final frontier, enters a rarified circle of society which commands respect, status, and social position. Reaching this final frontier after two difficult barriers viz; prelims and mains itself is testimony to the fact that you are a civil servant in the making. Leaving behind lakhs of equally keen competitors, you join a select few going to be interviewed by UPSC before getting inducted in the exclusive club of civil services.

Role of Interview in your selection: Going alone by marks criteria, interview accounts for just 275 marks compared to 1750 marks allotted to the main examination. No doubt, it is the performance in the main examination that will count for the ultimate success. This, however, does not belittle the importance

the accuracy of the results to be extracted. This means that the machine is trained to read the coded text and extract the desired summary/abstract or the so-called headnote in this case. This training of the machine is done using various software tools like the R-language, where a combination of Perl-like and regular expressions are written. Since all of this involves combinatorics of high order, a large repository of statistical rules is generated out of this exercise. The more permutations and combinations could be applied, the more would be the efficacy of machine learning. This means that the more computer is trained with these rules, the more closer can one get to the desired accuracy. Historically, the process of identifying relevant portions for the headnote when it was done manually, headnote writers used to establish a pattern in the input cases. For example, if it was a criminal case from a high court, a general pattern would help them locate the holding or the ruling part in a certain range of page numbers, etc.

However, when AI was applied, such kinds of pattern recognition were effective to a limited number of fields of a headnote only. Interestingly, headnotes have a unique format and thus, they are divided into a number of elements to be populated in a sequence. A unique identifier for every case, the court that it's filed in, appellant versus respondent, area of law, legislation, provision of the fact, keywords, fact, issue, holding, disposition with orbiter dicta and ratio decidendi. Of these twelve fields, one would notice that facts, issues, and holding retain the heart and soul of the headnote. Interestingly, while all other fields can be extracted through place locator search, these three remain the major challenge for a headnote writer since the content related to these texts are completely subjective in nature. From the hands-on experience, high accuracy of content extraction was reported in all other nine fields barring the fact, issue, and holding of the case. Efforts are on, and teams of data scientists and legal experts are working day-in-day-out to arrive at correct data extraction from reported legal cases.

This exercise of applying artificial intelligence to this use case thus, yields three major outcomes - content classification, extraction, and subsequently summarization. We all know that content is king, and applying automation to content can help us apply it to a number of other applications as well. This challenge gets bigger if the content is not structured and disparate in nature. Legal domain, that way sits on a rapidly growing content base, which is huge, unstructured, and yet disparate in nature. This challenge has, thus, given birth to a bigger industry called legal process outsourcing or legal processing, which serves the practicing legal community of lawyers and judges, professionals working in the para-legal domains, corporates, those in intellectual & property rights, and legal content aggregators & publishers. Legal processing is one major application area where AI's application is highly sought for a number of reasons. Sifting through a large stack of content, judges and practicing lawyers struggle at times to hunt for relevant cases/precedence to be applied while fighting a case in the court. Similarly, in cases of patents and trademarks, the application of AI is highly important and relevant to help lawyers, especially, when required and relevant portions of content are to be pulled in the shortest possible period of time. This means that with a very short turnaround time, highly correct and accurate data needs to be duly extracted for a correct and quick decision.

In fact, this is not as simple as it readout. Another major challenge besides summarizing the case judgment is its classification. The legal cases are divided into a number of types, a number of courts they come from, etc., and thus require the application of artificial intelligence in developing ontologies for the fast-evolving legal content management domain.

Well, this is just the tip of the iceberg. On the global scales, the legal industry possesses humongous data reserves of legacy legal content on one hand and continues to produce another huge content on the other, that too on a daily basis. This clearly means that this domain is a huge mine of jobs and opportunities for domain experts in law, intellectual property, patents & trademarks, content management, data science, and information technology. Yes, this is the fast-expanding world of legal content management services, which has crossed the national boundaries and gained multinational status like any other export outsourcing business. Besides humongous data that is generated within the country, our IT and legal resources have proved to be useful to a huge need from the overseas market as well. A number of legal graduates and post-graduates have taken up careers in legal content management services through large legal content aggregators and publishers. Despite a huge number of human resources at work, there is still a dearth of adequate resources in this industry that serves the growing needs of consumers of the national data. Besides national content, the export legal process outsourcing industry is booming as well. A number of law firms and aggregators from the west, esp. the US continues to pump in a lot of work for legal resources and IT professionals to work continuously in areas of handling document review, legal transcription, e-discovery, accident reports, headnotes/summaries, documentation, and much more. In the private sector, besides the big-four accounting firms (KPMG, E&Y, Deloitte & PwC), the legal content aggregators like LexisNexis, Thomson Reuters, Kluwer and many others remain promising job providers, both in terms of regular employment and freelance assignments.

The world of Legal Process Outsourcing (LPO) seems promising and in the new normal, where work-from-home seems to be the preferred choice, this domain fits aptly well. The bottom line is if one with legal background has an inclination for data science, this combination could take him or her to a very rewarding career ahead. India for that matter stands apart as we witness more and more domain specialists applying for career upgrades in the promising world of data science. Great going. Directions for the following 4 (four) items:
Read the following four passages and answer the items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only.

Passage-1

Global population was around 1.6 billion in 1990- today it is around 7.2 billion and growing. Recent estimates on population growth predict a global population of 9.6 billion in 2050 and 10.9 billion in 2100. Unlike Europe and North America, where only three to four per cent of population is engaged in agriculture, around 47 per cent of India's population is dependent upon agriculture. Even if India continues to do well in the service sector and the manufacturing sector picks up, it is expected that around 2030 when India overtakes China as the world's most populous country, nearly 42 per cent of India's population will still be predominantly dependent on agriculture.

Q7. Which of the following is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- (a) Prosperity of agriculture sector is of critical importance to India.
(b) Indian economy greatly depends on its agriculture.
(c) India should take strict measures to control its rapid population growth.
(d) India's farming communities should switch over to other occupations to improve their economic conditions.

Passage-2

Many pathogens that cause foodborne illnesses are unknown. Food contamination can occur at any stage from farm to plate. Since most cases of food poisoning go unreported, the true extent of global foodborne illnesses is unknown. Improvements in international monitoring have led to greater public awareness, yet the rapid globalization of food production increases consumers' vulnerability by making food harder to regulate and trace. "We have the world on our plates", says an official of WHO.

Q8. Which of the following is the most logical corollary to the above passage?

- (a) With more options for food come more risks.
(b) Food processing is the source of all foodborne illnesses.
(c) We should depend on locally produced food only.
(d) Globalization of food production should be curtailed.

Passage-3

I am a scientist, privileged to be somebody who tries to understand nature using the tools of science. But it is also clear that there are some really important questions that science cannot really answer, such as: Why is there something instead of nothing? Why are we here? In these domains, I have found that faith provides a better path to answers. I find it oddly anachronistic that in today's culture there seems to be a widespread presumption that scientific and spiritual views are incompatible.

Q9. Which of the following is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?

- (a) It is the faith and not science that can finally solve all the problems of mankind.
(b) Science and faith can be mutually complementary if their proper domains are understood.
(c) There are some very fundamental questions which cannot be answered by either science or faith.
(d) In today's culture, scientific views are given more importance than spiritual views.

Passage-4

Though I have discarded much of past tradition and custom, and am anxious that India should rid herself of all shackles that bind and contain her and divide her people, and suppress vast numbers of them, and prevent the free development of the body and the spirit; though I seek all this, yet I do not wish to cut myself off from that past completely. I am proud of that great inheritance that has been and is, ours and I am conscious that I too, like all of us, am a link in that unbroken chain which goes back to the dawn of history in the immemorial past of India.

Q10. The author wants India to rid herself of certain past bonds because

- (a) he is not able to see the relevance of the past
(b) there is not much to be proud of
(c) he is not interested in the history of India
(d) they obstruct her physical and spiritual growth

Directions for the following 4 (four) items:
Read the following passage and answer the four items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passage only.

Passage

It is no longer enough for us to talk about providing for universal access to education. Making available schooling facilities is an essential prerequisite, but is insufficient to ensure that all children attend school and participate in the learning process. The school may be there, but children may not attend or they may drop out after a few months. Through school and social mapping, we must address the entire gamut of social, economic, cultural and indeed linguistic and pedagogic issues, factors that prevent children from weaker sections and disadvantaged groups, as also girls, from regularly attending and complementing elementary education. The focus must be on the poorest and most vulnerable since these groups are the most disempowered and at the greatest risk of violation or denial of their right to education.

The right to education goes beyond free and compulsory education to include quality education for all. Quality is an integral part of the right to education. If the education process lacks quality, children are being denied their right. The Right of Children to Free and Compulsory Education Act lays down that the curriculum should provide for learning through activities, exploration and discovery. This places an obligation on us to change our perception of children as passive receivers of knowledge, and to move beyond the convention of using textbooks as the basis of examinations. The teaching-learning process must become stress-free; and a massive programme for curricular reform should be initiated to provide for a child-friendly learning system, that is more relevant and empowering. Teacher accountability systems and processes must ensure that children are learning, and that their right to learn in a child-friendly environment is not violated. Testing and assessment systems must be reexamined and redesigned to ensure that these do not force children to struggle between school and tuition centres, and bypass childhood.

Q17. According to the passage, which of the following is/are of paramount importance under the Right to Education?

- Sending of children to school by all parents
- Provision of adequate physical infrastructure in schools
- Curricular reforms for developing child-friendly learning system

Which of the above assumptions is/ are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 and 3 only (c) 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Directions for the following 7 (seven) items:

Read the following four passages and answer the items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only. Passage-1 'Desertification' is a term used to explain a process of decline in the biological productivity of an ecosystem, leading to total loss of productivity. While this phenomenon is often linked to the arid, semi-arid and sub-humid ecosystems, even in the humid tropics, the impact could be most dramatic. Impoverishment of human-impacted terrestrial ecosystems may exhibit itself in a variety of ways : accelerated erosion as in the mountain regions of the country, salinization of land as in the semi-arid and arid 'green revolution' areas of the country, e.g., Haryana and western Uttar Pradesh, and site quality decline- a common phenomenon due to general decline in tree cover and monotonous monoculture of rice/wheat across the Indian plains. A major consequence of deforestation is that it relates to adverse alterations in the hydrology and related soil and nutrient losses. The consequences of deforestation invariably arise out of site degradation through erosive losses. Tropical Asia, Africa and South America have the highest levels of erosion. The already high rates for the tropics are increasing at an alarming rate (e.g., through the major river systems-Ganga and Brahmaputra, in the Indian context), due to deforestation and ill-suited land management practices subsequent to forest clearing. In the mountain context, the declining moisture retention of the mountain soils, drying up of the underground springs and smaller rivers in the Himalayan region could be attributed to drastic changes in the forest cover. An indirect consequence is drastic alteration in the upland-lowland interaction, mediated through water. The current concern the tea planter of Assam has is about the damage to tea plantations due to frequent inundation along the flood-plains of Brahmaputra, and the damage to tea plantation and the consequent loss in tea productivity is due to rising level of the river bottom because of siltation and the changing course of the river system. The ultimate consequences of site desertification are soil degradation, alteration in available water and its quality, and the consequent decline in food, fodder and fuel-wood yields essential for the economic well-being of rural communities.

Q27. According to the passage, which of the following are the consequences of decline in forest cover?

1. Loss of topsoil
2. Loss of smaller rivers
3. Adverse effect on agricultural production
4. Declining of groundwater

Select the correct answer using the code given below.

- (a) 1, 2 and 3 only (b) 2, 3 and 4 only
 (c) 1 and 4 only (d) 1, 2, 3 and 4

Q28. Which of the following is/are the correct Inference/ Inferences that can be made from the passage?

1. Deforestation can cause changes in the course of rivers.
2. Salinization of land takes place due to human activities only.
3. Intense monoculture practice in plains is a major reason for desertification in Tropical Asia, Africa and South America.

Select the correct answer using the code given below.

- (a) 1 only (b) 1 and 2 only (c) 2 and 3 only
 (d) None of the above is a correct inference

Q29. With reference to 'desertification', as described in the passage, the following assumptions have been made:

1. Desertification is a phenomenon in tropical areas only.
2. Deforestation invariably leads to floods and desertification.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only (c) Both 1 and 2
 (d) Neither 1 nor 2

Passage-2

A diversity of natural assets will be needed to cope with climate change and ensure productive agriculture forestry, and fisheries. For example, crop varieties are needed that perform well under drought, heat, and enhanced CO₂. But the private-sector and farmer-led process of choosing crops favours homogeneity adapted to past or current conditions, not varieties capable of producing consistently high yields in warmer, wetter, or drier conditions. Accelerated breeding programmes are needed to conserve a wider pool of genetic resources of existing crops, breeds, and their wild relatives. Relatively intact ecosystems, such as forested catchments, mangroves, wetlands, can buffer the impacts of climate change. Under a changing climate, these ecosystems are themselves at risk, and management approaches will need to be more proactive and adaptive. Connections between natural areas, such as migration corridors, may be needed to facilitate species movements to keep up with the change in climate.

Q30. With reference to the above passage, which of the following would assist us in coping with the climate change?

1. Conservation of natural water sources
2. Conservation of wider gene pool
3. Existing crop management practices
4. Migration corridors

Select the correct answer using the code given below.

- (a) 1, 2 and 3 only (b) 1, 2 and 4 only
 (c) 3 and 4 only (d) 1, 2, 3 and 4

Q31. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:

1. Diversification of livelihoods acts as a coping strategy for climate change.
2. Adoption of monocropping practice leads to the extinction of plant varieties and their wild relatives.

Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?

- (a) 1 only (b) 2 only (c) Both 1 and 2
 (d) Neither 1 nor 2

Passage-3

Today, the top environmental challenge is a combination of people and their aspirations. If the aspirations are more like the frugal ones we had after the Second World War, a lot more is possible than if we view the planet as a giant shopping mall. We need to get beyond the fascination with glitter and understand that the planet works as a biological system.

Q32. Which of the following is the most crucial and logical inference that can be made from the above passage?

- (a) The Earth can meet only the basic needs of humans for food, clothing and shelter.
- (b) The only way to meet environmental challenge is to limit human population.
- (c) Reducing our consumerism is very much in our own interest.
- (d) Knowledge of biological systems can only help us save this planet.

Passage-4

Some people believe that leadership is a quality which you have at birth or not at all. This theory is false, for the art of leadership can be acquired and can indeed be taught. This discovery is made in time of war and the results achieved can surprise even the instructors. Faced with the alternatives of going left or right, every soldier soon grasps that a prompt decision either way is better than an endless discussion. A firm choice of direction has an even chance of being right while to do nothing will be almost certainly wrong.

- (b) leadership can be acquired as well as taught
- (c) the results of training show that more people acquire leadership than are expected

Directions for the following 8 (eight) items:
 Read the following eight passages and answer the items that follow. Your answers to these items should be based on the passages only.

Passage-1

All actions to address climate change ultimately involve costs. Funding is vital in order for countries like India to design and implement adaptation and mitigation plans and projects. The problem is more severe for developing countries like India, which would be one of the hardest hit by climate change, given its need to finance development. Most countries do indeed treat climate change as real threat and are striving to address it in a more comprehensive and integrated manner with the limited resources at their disposal.

- Q49. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:
 1. Climate change is not a challenge for developed countries.
 2. Climate change is a complex policy issue and also a development issue for many countries.
 3. Ways and means of finance must be found to enable developing countries to enhance their adaptive capacity.
 Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
 (a) 1 and 2 only (b) 3 only
 (c) 2 and 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Passage-2

Cooking with biomass and coal in India is now recognized to cause major health problems, with women and children in poor populations facing the greatest risk. There are more than 10 lakh premature deaths each year from household air pollution due to polluting cooking fuels with another 1.5 lakh due to their contribution to general outdoor air pollution in the country. Although the fraction of the Indian population using clean cooking fuels, such as LPG, natural gas and electricity, is slowly rising, the number using polluting solid fuels as their primary cooking fuel has remained static for nearly 30 years at about 70 crore.

- Q50. Which of the following is the most crucial and logical inference that can be made from the above passage?
 (a) Rural people are giving up the use of polluting solid fuels due to their increasing awareness of health hazards.
 (b) Subsidizing the use of clean cooking fuels will solve the problem of India's indoor air pollution.
 (c) India should increase its import of natural gas and produce more electricity.
 (d) Access to cooking gas can reduce premature deaths in poor households.

Passage-3

Scientific knowledge has its dangers, but so has every great thing. Over and beyond the dangers with which it threatens the present, it opens up as nothing else can, the vision of a possible happy world; a world without poverty, without war, with little illness. Science, whatever unpleasant consequences it may have by the way, is in its very nature a liberator.

- Q51. Which one of the following is the most important implication of the passage?
 (a) A happy world is a dream of science.
 (b) Science only can build a happy world, but it is also the only major threat.
 (c) A happy world is not possible without science.
 (d) A happy world is not at all possible with or without science.

Passage-4

The Arctic's vast reserves of fossil fuel, fish and minerals are now accessible for a longer period in a year. But unlike Antarctica, which is protected from exploitation by the Antarctic Treaty framed during the Cold War and is not subject to territorial claims by any country, there is no legal regime protecting the Arctic from industrialization, especially at a time when the world craves for more and more resources. The distinct possibility of ice-free summer has prompted countries with Arctic coastline to scramble for great chunks of the melting ocean.

- Q52. Which one of the following is the most important implication of the passage?
 (a) India can have territorial claims in the Arctic territory and free access to its resources.
 (b) Melting of summer ice in the Arctic leads to changes in the geopolitics.
 (c) The Arctic region will solve the world's future problem of resource crunch.
 (d) The Arctic region has more resources than Antarctica.

Passage-5

Being a member of the WTO, India is bound by the agreements that have been signed and ratified by its members, including itself. According to Article 6 of the Agriculture Agreement, providing minimum support prices for agricultural products is considered distorting and is subject to limits. The subsidy arising from 'minimal supports' cannot exceed 10 per cent of the value of agricultural production for developing countries. PDS in India entails minimum support prices and public stockholding of food grains. It is possible that, in some years, the subsidy to producers will exceed 10 per cent of the value of agricultural production.

- Q53. What is the crucial message conveyed by the above passage?
 (a) India should revise its PDS.
 (b) India should not be a member of WTO.
 (c) For India, food security collides with trade.
 (d) India provides food security to its poor.

Passage-6

India's educational system is modelled on the mass education system that developed in the 19th century in Europe and later spread around the world. The goal of the system is to condition children as 'good' citizens and productive workers. This suited the industrial age that needed the constant supply of a compliant workforce with a narrow set of capabilities. Our educational institutes resemble factories with bells, uniforms and batch-processing of learners, designed to get learners to conform. But, from an economic point of view, the environment today is very different. It is a complex, volatile and globally interconnected world.

- Q54. With reference to the above passage, the following assumptions have been made:
 1. India continues to be a developing country essentially due to its faulty education system.
 2. Today's learners need to acquire new-age skill-sets.
 3. A good number of Indians go to some developed countries for education because the educational systems there are a perfect reflection of the societies in which they function.
 Which of the above assumptions is/are valid?
 (a) 1 and 3 only (b) 2 only
 (c) 2 and 3 only (d) 1, 2 and 3

Passage-7

The practice of dieting has become an epidemic; everyone is looking out for a way to attain that perfect body. We are all different with respect to our ethnicity, genetics, family history, gender, age, physical and mental and spiritual health status, lifestyles and preferences. Thereby we also differ in what foods we tolerate or are sensitive to. So we really cannot reduce so many complexities into one diet or diet book. This explains the failure of diets across the world in curbing obesity. Unless the reasons for weight gain are well understood and addressed and unless habits are changed permanently, no diet is likely to succeed.

- Q55. What is the most logical and rational inference that can be made from the above passage?
 (a) Obesity has become an epidemic all over the world.
 (b) A lot of people are obsessed with attaining a perfect body.
 (c) Obesity is essentially an incurable disease.
 (d) There is no perfect diet or one solution for obesity.

Passage-8

Monoculture carries great risks. A single disease or pest can wipe out swathes of the world's food production, an alarming prospect given that its growing and wealthier population will eat 70% more by 2050. The risks are magnified by the changing climate. As the planet warms and monsoon rains intensify, farmlands in Asia will flood. North America will suffer more intense droughts, and crop diseases will spread to new latitudes.

- Q56. Which of the following is the most logical, rational and crucial message given by the passage?
 (a) Preserving crop genetic diversity is an insurance against the effects of climate change.
 (b) Despite great risks, monoculture is the only way to ensure food security in the world.
 (c) More and more genetically modified crops only can save the world from impending shortages of food.
 (d) Asia and North America will be worst sufferers from climate change and the consequent shortage of food.
- Q57. A shopkeeper sells an article at Rs. 40 and gets X% profit. However, when he sells it at Rs. 20, he faces same percentage of loss. What is the original cost of the article?
 (a) Rs. 10 (b) Rs. 20 (c) Rs. 30 (d) Rs. 40
- Q58. There are 24 equally spaced points lying on the circumference of a circle. What is the maximum number of equilateral triangles that can be drawn by taking sets of three points as the vertices?
 (a) 4 (b) 6 (c) 8 (d) 12

 What is the next term of the series?
 (a) 24/3/96 (b) 25/3/96
 (c) 26/3/96 (d) 27/3/96
- Q60. Twelve equal squares are placed to fit in a rectangle of diagonal 5 cm. There are three rows containing four squares each. No gaps are left between adjacent squares. What is the area of each square?
 (a) 5/7 sq cm (b) 7/5 sq cm
 (c) 1 sq cm (d) 25/12 sq cm
- Q61. Consider the following graph :

 (a) On 1st June, the actual progress of work was less than expected.
 (b) The actual rate of progress of work was the greatest during the month of August.
 (c) The work was actually completed before the expected time.
 (d) During the period from 1st April to 1st September, at no time was the actual progress more than the expected progress.

of the interview marks. Good marks obtained in the interview will help you not only to get the top jobs like IAS, IPS, and IFS but also a cadre of your choice. Moreover, it provides you a last opportunity to make up for any loss of marks in the main examination. For some reasons, if you have not secured very good marks in the main examination, here is another window of opportunity to obtain extraordinary marks in the interview and compensate for the loss. It will be quite safe to state that of all the three stages of UPSC exam, interview is most expected as well as predictable. It has been unnecessarily mystified by people with inadequate understanding of the core purpose of the interview. While preliminary exam has emerged as most unpredictable, main examination is relatively more predictable, and interview is most predictable because it will be conducted on an expected pattern. They are not going to ask you questions on topics irrelevant to your bio data, background, past job profile, academic achievement etc. Even on social, economic, governance and international issues, they will gauge you on predictable lines. Therefore, what they ask you is not the problem, what you are going to answer may become a problem though. With application of common sense, a candidate can expect a large number of issues raised during the interview. Even if you just don't know many of the questions that you didn't expect, it will not harm your prospects of fetching high marks so long as you have performed well in areas of your strength. It is extremely important to remember that the board will test you on what you know rather than what you do not know. It is the projection of your personality that matters more than exchange of information and knowledge which has already been tested in preliminary and main examinations. This explains why candidates who feel they have answered all the questions get average marks, while those who feel they could not answer many questions get higher marks. The board is not engaging you in a question-answer session at all. Rather, you are engaged in a candid conversation with the board for 30 odd minutes during which you will be made to articulate your views, values, qualities of character, and other traits of a successful civil servant. These qualities will be evaluated during the conversation. The interview thus seeks to judge your true, authentic self. This way, interview is not an extraordinary moment but a real, down to earth situation where you are interacting with senior persons from different backgrounds.

Qualities to be tested during interview session: In its official notification, UPSC has enumerated the following qualities that will be tested.

- I. Mental alertness: An alert mind is a curious mind and inquisitive mind. Say for example, how alert your mind is on the second wave of corona pandemic will be tested by asking you questions on its new mutants, their high transmissibility, fatality, efficacy of vaccines etc.
- II. Critical power of assimilation: It means synthesizing the available information. Again in the context of corona crisis, it would mean how you visualise the second wave distinguishing it from the first wave and learning lessons from past mistakes.
- III. Clear and logical exposition: It is your ability to describe something with logic and clarity.

- IV. Balance of judgement: It is your trail to judge issues by balancing various aspects of it rather than taking an extreme stand.
- V. Variety of depth and interest: It means you have genuine, in depth interest in issues placed before you. For example, Indian democracy has been shown in poor ranking in recent times by various international surveys. On this, you must have broader knowledge of what is happening to democracies all over the world. Secondly, you should have in depth interest in understanding how Indian democracy has evolved since 1947, its weaknesses and strengths, remedial measures to reinvigorate it.
- VI. Ability for social cohesion and leadership: Leadership quality is a prime requirement in civil services. It means how you can lead in delivering governance and how well you can connect with social expectations while delivering public services.

VII. Intellectual and moral integrity: Intellectual integrity implies values of conviction, truthfulness, honesty, while moral uprightness is about the character, ability, knowledge, and know-how to do the right thing consistently.

The above mentioned traits will not be judged one by one during the interview. Rather, a holistic view will be taken from your approach, attitude, analysis offered by you in your interactions.

It should be very clear then that the interview is not conducted in a question-answer format at all. It is an interactive, conversational session that proceeds in a natural, free flowing manner. You will be made to feel at ease by the board members by slowly engaging you with them in a lively conversation.

Civil Services interview is not about:

- A mere question-answer session
- A test of knowledge and plethora of information
- An attempt to pin you down by tough questions
- Having extraordinary expectations from you

Civil Services interview is about:

- Evaluating your true, authentic self
- An interactive, friendly conversation
- Extracting your opinion and stand on vital issues
- Exploring your personality traits

How it all starts: When you enter the Interview Room, you will find five board members sitting there. The Chairman will ask a few general questions from your DAF (Detailed Application Form). After a few minutes, he will request another member to ask questions. The board is keen to know about your education, hobbies, accomplishments, jobs if any, state of your residence. Once such queries have been completed, they will turn to issues that are in the news. It may start with, say, covid crisis and thereafter turn to India's health infrastructure, vaccine diplomacy etc. As you answer the questions, the areas and topics will be changed by members. Most of the questions will be on well known issues only. In about thirty minutes or so, they will conclude the session and ask you to leave. After discussing your performance, the Board arrives at a consensus on allotting you marks.

Preparation for Interview: Though your interview is going to be an outcome of what you have learnt and acquired in your life so far, nevertheless, you can consider the following aspects just days before the conduct of the interview.

- I. Manners and etiquettes: Decency, humility, politeness, positive body language, good eye contact with members.
- II. Covering DAF: Since DAF contains information on you provided by yourself, it is important to defend those information. So, go about preparing DAF based questions very carefully.
- III. Covering your state: Consult websites of your state government to know about its schemes of development. Refer to Economic Survey of your state. Jot down current issues in prominence on your state. Brush up on geography, culture, history of your state.
- IV. Current Affairs: Make a list of current issues under headings like health, economy, society, science and technology, international issues, governance and then formulate your stand on those issues.

Important tips for interview

- I. Project your natural, true self before board: Don't try to look extraordinary and someone else. Be yourself. This is what the board expects from you.
- II. Be honest: Never bluff. Honesty is the best policy. If you don't know something, just accept it honestly.
- III. Don't get confused by so many self-styled mock interview boards: People with no real knowledge or experience of the Civil Services interview tend to offer misleading advice. Its not advisable to take those advices for granted.
- IV. Practice before mirror: Just before your interview date, start speaking in front of mirror on any issue for five minutes. This will improve your articulation, voice modulation.

HIGHLIGHTS OF PM'S PARIKSHA PE CHARCHA 2021

In the 4th edition of Panksha Pe Charcha, the Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi interacted with students, teachers and parents in virtual mode. The interaction, which lasted more than ninety minutes, saw students, teachers and parents seeking guidance on various issues of importance to them from the Prime Minister. This year too, students from across the country, and also Indian students residing abroad, participated in the event.

Key Takeaways from PM's interaction with students, teachers and parents...

- Pariksha Pe Charcha is not only a discussion on examination but also an occasion to talk among family members and friends, in a relaxed atmosphere and to create new confidence.
- Fear of examination is mainly due to the atmosphere that has made examination be all and end all of life.
- Exams should be treated as merely an occasion to test oneself and should not be turned into a question of life and death. Difficult chapters and

- subjects should be tackled in the morning with fresh mind.
- Free time is the best opportunity to learn new skills and should be used in the activities which bring out the uniqueness of an individual.
- Elders should try to inspire by living their ideals.

- Prime Minister gave the formula of 'involve, internalize, associate and visualize' as a pathway to sharp memory. One should internalize instead of memorize.
- Students should take exam with relaxed frame of mind and focus on giving the answers in best possible way.
- Corona period taught the value of family and its role in shaping the lives of children.
- Children should be approached with open mind. They should come out of the pressure of people, parents and society.
- Prime Minister also exhorted students to contribute to 'Vocal for Local' campaign and make India Aatmnirbhar. The Prime Minister also asked the students to get involved in 'Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav' by collecting information about the Freedom Struggle.

Vienna: Diplomats from major powers meet separately with Iran, US

Diplomats from major powers met separately with Iran and the United States to discuss how to bring both back into compliance with the 2015 nuclear deal that Washington abandoned three years ago. Neither the United States nor Iran expect fast breakthroughs in the talks that began in Vienna on April 6, with European and other diplomats acting as intermediaries because Tehran rejects face-to-face talks for now. Former U.S. President Donald Trump withdrew from the deal, which lifted economic sanctions on Iran in return for curbs to its nuclear program. He reimposed U.S. sanctions, prompting Iran in turn to violate the accord's atomic limits. The deal's remaining parties - Iran, Britain, China, France, Germany and Russia - agreed on April 6 to form two expert-level groups whose job is to marry lists of sanctions that the United States could lift with nuclear obligations Iran should meet.
